About the opportunity

Lecturers in education focused roles will dedicate the majority of their contribution to the Discipline to teaching, learning, curriculum development, and scholarship in education (70%). Education-focussed academics in Finance will contribute to outstanding education design, delivery, evaluation and outcomes; will apply pedagogical scholarship to practice; will contribute to education and administrative duties; will contribute to a positive workplace culture; will support the strategic direction of the Business School and University; will engage in pedagogical activities and will develop a profile with external stakeholders.

About you

The University values courage and creativity; openness and engagement; inclusion and diversity; and respect and integrity. As such, we see the importance of recruiting scholars aligned to these values. This role is the right fit for you if you have:

- completed PhD (or nearly completed) in Finance or closely related field.
- a proven ability, commitment and passion for engaging in scholarly activities to inform innovative pedagogical practice
- deep and broad experience in teaching and learning in a tertiary environment, as evidenced by participation in team teaching within an established program and experience in teaching in a variety of settings
- demonstrated success in designing, implementing and evaluating teaching and learning initiatives
- a developing network of relationships with key academic, industry and professional institutions, partners and stakeholders
- experience in supervising or mentoring others and/or coordinating team activities
- demonstrated capacity to stimulate, actively engage and educate an audience using a range of media
